

Leading Mainland Art Auction House Expands Hong Kong Operation

China Guardian Auctions Co Ltd, a sizeable auction house based in Beijing, has developed its Hong Kong office to hold biannual auctions for Chinese arts since 2011, reaffirming Hong Kong's position as Asia's commercial art hub

Established in May 1993, China Guardian Auctions Co Ltd was the first auction company to specialise in the sale of Chinese artwork of all types. Since that time, the company has successfully staged more than 300 auctions with over 250,000 lots sold. The company has grown over the past few years in Hong Kong and now has 30 employees.

Since its first auction outside Mainland China in 2012, China Guardian has successfully held seven auctions in Hong Kong. As they decided to 'go global', they need a place like Hong Kong with a more internationalised environment and superb efficiency for continuous business development to carry on providing quality services to collectors around the world.

With a wealth of good collectors and a long history in the buying and selling of contemporary art, Hong Kong attains a very high position in the international art market. China Guardian has also obtained a number of local clients.
