KELLETT SCHOOL CELEBRATES HALF A CENTURY IN HONG KONG WITH CAMPUS EXPANSION

Marking its 50th anniversary, the independent British international school expands its Kowloon Bay footprint and deepens its community commitment through Kellett Outreach.

Founded in 1976 as an independent, not-for-profit and parent-governed school, Kellett School is celebrating its 50th anniversary. This milestone aligns with Hong Kong holding the top spot in the Asian Cities Internationality Index 2026, underscoring the effect of its recent talent-attraction policy measures.

"Reaching our 50th anniversary is a remarkable milestone that reflects our deep-rooted commitment to Hong Kong," stated Paul Tough, Principal & CEO of Kellett School. "To accommodate this growing demand, our school, which expanded from its historic Pok Fu Lam campus to Kowloon Bay in 2013, has secured additional space in a third connected site in Kowloon Bay to house our expanding Sixth Form. Our campus expansion responds directly to more expatriate families choosing to complete their children's entire education here, supported by the city's vibrant and global environment."

"Hong Kong's vibrant talent pool also makes it easy to recruit exceptional teaching and support staff from all over the world," Tough noted. "Once they arrive in Hong Kong, they are thrilled with the mix of world-class city life and outdoor living the city offers."

Nurturing Global Minds and Giving Back

Home to around 1,600 students aged 4–18, Kellett School nurtures a vibrant community of families drawn from more than 45 nationalities. As part of its commitment to giving back, the school launched its flagship social impact project, Kellett Outreach.

"Our mission is to give every child a love of learning and confidence for life," Tough explained.

> "Hong Kong's unique spirit, combined with its standing as Asia's most international city, enables us to offer an unparalleled learning experience. Our campus expansion and Kellett Outreach reinforce our half-century commitment to nurturing global talent in Hong Kong."

"Through Kellett Outreach, we offer a day of academic and enrichment sessions for children from low-income backgrounds each Saturday in term time. Furthermore, we aim to provide two students per year with a fully funded, full-time place at Kellett, ensuring that talented young people in Hong Kong can benefit from high-quality education, regardless of their financial background."

In Close Collaboration with InvestHK

InvestHK has provided continuous support to facilitate Kellett School's growth. "By delivering key market insights, and assisting with ecosystem integration, InvestHK remains our crucial partner in helping the school serve Hong Kong's evolving international community," Tough concluded.
